Sword Presentation,

I was our good fortune to be present on Saturday last at the presentation of a most magnificent sword to the late Col of the 3rd Infly, by a large number of men of that command in behalf of themselves and their departed comrades. We had understood that for some time it was in costemplation to present such a testimonial, but were unable to learn any particulars, and were very much surprisen on being invited a day or two since to see the sword which had been ordered. It is a Damascus blade, with hilt representing Minervia helmeted and grasping the shield, with a silver scabbard-both hilt and scabbard being richly set with garnets.

The donors, to the number of some two bundred, assembled in front of the Col.'s quarters about 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, and the following address was delivered on their behalf by Ephraim H. Gatewood of Co. D, 3rd Infy Bat., C. V., vis :

Should circumstances render it possible; the aword you has present as a memento of our a ciation as officer and soldiers will be wielded on the field in defence of the l'nion in such a manner that will bring no discredit on the donors, and should your former Colonel not again enter the service of his country as a soldier, he will constantly cherish the memory of the members of his former regiment and point with pride to the testimonial of their affection and esteem.

With three cheers and a "tiger" for their beloved Colonel, the men retired.

. We understand that Col. Pollock will soon leave for California, where he is to take command of the 2d Reg't of Infy, C. V., the head quarters of which are at the Presidio of San Francisco. He curries with him the good wishes of both enlisted men and officers of his former command, together with the respect of all classes in this community.

Chicago, Nov. 4th. A Nashville letter of the 2d, says Hood's army is now on the north side of the Tennessee. The estimate of his force is 35,000, of all arms, and he bas 61 pieces of artillery, mostly 6 and 12 pounders. He effected the crossing at the river at Cypress creek, two and a half miles below Florence, which point is better suited than any along the river for that purpose. As yet there are no developments of his situation, at least nothing that will throw any light on his movements. He has no supplies, save such as be collects in the country as he proceeds, and that involves the scattering of his forces. The letter adds : Ample preparations are being made to receive him, and he will be overwhelmed before be knows it.

A well informed St. Louis correspond ent of the Journal says : What Price accomplished during his raid may be summed up this: He received 2,000 recruits, the same number of conscripts and captured about 1,500 stand of arms, paroled 2,000 prisoners and destroyed $5,000,000 worth of property. On the other hand. he lost at least 3.000 men in battle., besides many bundred deserters, about 15 pieces of artillery, 250 wagons, with their spoils, and several thousand horace and small arms. He carried but little out of the State, except a number of horses and the clothing on the backs of bis thieving followers. The raid has been marked more for damages to the people than benefit to the rebels.

Another correspondent says: I have been in the wake of the "deliverers," as Price's army is called, and I cannot find an instance where private property was respected. Age and sex were disregarded in the towns they passed throughwomen were ravished, negroes killed. while men were torn from their homes and forced to join the rebel cause, and in many instances boys of fourteen years were conscripted.

They had 100 men in Buffalo who had been coming for a week previous, and were scattered about the city in different boarding places, when at a given signal these men by means of Greck fire, would set fire to the city in various places and then proceed to work to murder and pillage. An emigrant ship from Bremen arrived at this port a few days since, and among the passenger landing they expressed great surprise that gold was not currenting this country. Upon inquiry it was ascertained that a sharper well known in this city, had taken passage in the ship in Bremen, and being possessed of a very smooth tongue, he succeeded in buring up the greater portion of the gold in the possession of the passengers, telling them that the only money current in this country was greenbacks. The gold was freely parted with at a discount of thirty per cent, and the swindled emgrants were lavish in their praise toward their kind friend. estimated that the sharper cleared upwards of three thousand dollars by his shrewd rascality.-Baltimore Clipper.

SHERIDAN'S MILITARY INTERFER-ENCE .- A correspondent of the New York Tribune, writing from. Pennsylvania, says:

There are two circumstances connected with Sheridan's victory over Early, which deserve to be generally known.

Ist. Early had prepared, and would have made, the very day he was attacked, the preliminary movement of an electioneering raid into Pennsylvaffia, in order to help carry the State for Mc-Clellan. It was to be most conrteensly conducted-no barning of towns or plandering or private individuals. [See Early's last order, which indicates the programme.

2d. General Grant stated to my informant, that "Barly will be driven out of the Valley within forty-eight hours." Grant knew of the intended raid, and came North in order to take charge of t. with Sheridan's help.

The Cath olic church does not admit the validity of a divorce without a special dispensation; although Erlanger was duly divorced from his lirst wife, Madamoiselle Lafite, by the Schate of his native city, Frankfort, Miss Slidell, as a Catholic, could not admit the validity of the divorce, or of berown marriage, until the dispensation of the Holy See had been obtained. I may mention also that the daughter of Wm. Preston, Kentucky, now in this city, on his way as Confederate Minister to Mexico, is soon to marry General Hood, in command in Georgia.

So our most potent and grave senior, tired of bunting matter for "leaders," has placed himself on a war footing and started post haste on the hunt for red skins, has he? He has bid adieu to the duties of the sanctum, and has assumed the garb of the "soldier man" in earnest. The pen which he has wielded so ably and so faithfully for the glorious cause to which we are so zealously devoted, has been laid aside for the command of the sword.

His famous hits and cuts, which always "tell," are abandoned for the cutting! of the Sioux-ugh! "big Injin me!" Well, we wish him tuck in his perilous undertaking, and should victory crown his efforts while in search of the savage foe, no mouth will exclaim it to the world sooner or with more heart than his little junior, who he so cruelly left behind him. But should bis trip be fraught with naught, ah! what then? Why, we should spout, "well done then good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of the "Pandemonium."

But did I say naught might attend his expedition ?- "absurd we"--with Gen. Connor and two hundred Vols, of the "fighting Second" it's impossible. Should the Sioux be seen, the remembrance of the 29th of Jun., '63. will be vivid with our gallant boys, and the graves in the Cemetery of their comrades will call loudly for revenge.

A GOOD ONE .- At the Theater in the city on Saturday evening, one of our Vois. was most beautifully .. done for." At the time when our Vol. was the most attentively engaged in the play, a gentleman standing near him pointed to the parquet, and with a hurried expression directed him to cast an eye therein, as a person was looking very intently towards him. Our Vol .- hoping it might be a fair one who had suddenly but ournessly become interested in himgazed in the direction referred to, but no countenance could he "discover" as being particularly anxious for his interests, and on so informing his stranger friend, he cooly pointed to the 1st violinist. with whose head the hair fails to connect and exclaimed, "there man! don't you see that?" You may imagine the cheapness of our Vol. and the laughter which greeted him from his comrades. But on looking for the stranger, he had immediately "left with his spoils."

The cavalry under command of Capt. Brown, left Camp yesterday in a shower of snow and hail, and took up the line of march for Fort Kearney. Notwithstanding the inclement weather and the prospects of a miserable cold trip, our gallant boys murmured not a word, so anxious are they to have a brush with the hostile tribes now infest ing the plains.

TO Our usual visit to the city of Saints on Saturday last, was withal pleasant and entertaining. Every department of commerce, barter and trade, is thriving beyond the predictions of the most sage counsellors. Busy bodies and busy things, and in fact every object in and around Salt Lake City looks busy This is the FIRST and OLDEST established and prosperous.
